Protecting Young People with Autism

Awareness Workshop

World Autism Awareness Week 2017

These workshops will provide parents and carers with an improved understanding of how to protect their children online and why young people with ASD are more vulnerable to online exploitation. We will be looking at messages that spread hate and encourage violent extremism and how to challenge these views. It will:

- Empower parents and carers to better support their children who may vulnerable to grooming, radicalisation and harmful online behaviours
- Improve your understanding of why young people with ASD , as evidence suggests, may be more vulnerable to being exploited
- Provide you with practical information on free monitoring tools and ways to check online activity
- Speakers include:
Richard Brown, Former Chair, Autism Sussex
Lucy Spencer Safer East Sussex Team
John Khan Lead Practitioner for Anti-Bullying, Prevent and Wellbeing
